Calle Ocho Festival (March 9, 2014)

One week each March, Miami transforms itself into a traditional Latin street festival. Calle Ocho (SW 8th Street) becomes the scene of Carnival as over a million spectators gather to celebrate in the city's largest annual party. If you'd like to join the fun, the 2014 festival begins on February 8th with the Miss Carnival Miami competition and continues through the grand finale on Sunday March 9th with the Calle Ocho block party.

What goes on at Calle Ocho? What doesn't! One of the most interesting traditional events is the Domino Tournament which takes place on March 5th. It's held in Domino Park at the corner of SW 8th Street and SW 15th Avenue and features some intense competition as Miami's domino giants compete for cash prizes.

If you're a golfer, you'll want to show up early for the Carnival Miami Golf Classic at the Country Club of Miami. It's on March 6th and features a shotgun start.

The big party is on Sunday March 9th and is one of Miami's "don't miss" events. If you've never been to El Festival de la Ocho, you owe it to yourself to attend! The festival closes off 24 blocks of SW 8th Street to host dancing, food, drink and 30 stages of live entertainment. This is one heck of a party! In 1988, the festival was the scene of a Guinness World Record, as 119,986 people joined in the world's longest conga line!

- Expect large crowds.
- There will be street closures. Don't drive downtown. Use Metrorail, the PeopleMover, the Trolleys, bicycle, or walk.

Got young kids? Here's a great child care option

Most people don't know about this, but the Miami Children's Museum is more than just a museum; it's also a great place for child care. MCM's Early Childhood Institute (ECI), is a licensed child care center that provides children 18 months – 5 years with a formal early childhood education experience in a museum setting. Children who attend MCM's ECI program, benefit from its blended curriculum and ideal combination of a classroom environment that is enhanced by its setting within an educational Museum facility. Because of the school's unique curriculum, children develop a love of learning and the arts from an early age.

MCM's ECI program is currently accepting registrations for the fall. The close proximity to downtown and Brickell makes it an ideal choice for early learning. To register, or learn more, please call 305.373.KIDS (5437) ext. 122; or visit www.miamichildrensmuseum.org
